Italy Makes Loud Protest As Result British Blockade

Protest, However, Meets Cool British Reception

GERMAN APOLOGY

Finns Repulse Three Attacks on City of Viipuri

ROME, Italy—(AP)—Rupture of the British-Italian "gentleman's agreement" regulating Mediterranean relations of the two countries appeared threatened Monday as the result of the British blockade of Italian sea-borne coal imports from Germany.

Italy, asserting her interest had been "seriously injured" by this blockade, made public a vigorous protest against the effects of non-belligerent nations because of Britain's "economic war."

The note, bristling with charges of illegality, was delivered to the British embassy.

While the coal blockade is the immediate occasion for the protest, the Italian note included a general complaint against the entire system of contraband control.

Gets Cool Reception

LONDON—(AP)—Foreign office circles indicated Monday that Italy's protest against Britain's stoppage of German coal shipments would meet a cool British reception.

"It cannot be assumed that we can waive rights and international interests which are maintained under international law," one British source said.

It was reported in authoritative quarters that the "most rapid and careful consideration" would be given the Italian note and that an effort would be made "to be as accommodating as possible."

German Apology

BRUSSELS, Belgium—Germany presented a complete apology Monday for the killing of a Belgian army aviator in a brush between three Belgian planes and a German bomber Saturday.

It was announced that Germany was prepared immediately to examine any indemnity demand by the Belgian government.

Finns Fight On

HELSINKI—(AP)—The Finnish high command Monday announced that its forces, fighting the invading Russians almost at the gates of Viipuri, had repelled attacks aimed at the city from three sides.

In addition the Finns reported fighting in the arctic region far into the north near Petsamo, northeast of Lake Ladoga, where they said 1,200 Russians had been killed.

Activities Watched

TOKYO, Japan—(AP)—Was Minister General Shunroku Hata declared before parliament Monday that the salvation army must be placed under "proper regulations" for the prevention of "espionage."

Hata said military authorities had started watching religious organizations' activities.

Lines Is Bombed

LONDON—(AP)—Bombing of the 841-ton British passenger liner Donsu, with a probable loss of 108 lives, was announced by the admiralty Sunday night as the battered and fire-scoured vessel reached an English port after a nightmare voyage from Antwerp.

The announcement followed disclosure that a British plane had been shot down by mistake by three royal air force fighters and the admission that two British cargo boats had been sunk by mines Saturday.

On the credit side, Britain reported her air force had downed a German Heinkel bomber in France—the third in two days.

(At the same time dispatches from Amsterdam reported the arrival of two Netherlands ships which said they had been machine-gunned while en route from England by an unidentified plane, which also bombed and sank an unnamed British vessel.)

The attack on the Donsu, the admiralty disclosed, occurred Saturday in the English channel.

In the light of a warning moon, a German Heinkel swooped down on the ship and dropped four bombs, three of which found their mark and set the vessel ablaze amidships. The captain was killed by one of the bombs.

In addition to 108 persons listed as missing and believed dead, many others were injured, the admiralty said.

Of the missing, 88 were British Indian seamen who had served aboard German ships before the war, and presumably were released from internment there because of the expense of their maintenance.

Twenty of 48 Britishers aboard the Donsu also were listed as missing. High seas at the time of the at-

THE STORY OF DEMOCRACY

By Hendrik Willem van Loon
Illustrated by the author

The Rise and Fall of Democracy Is a Story 2500 Years Old

The Acropolis was built at the height of power of the Athenian democracy.

CHAPTER ONE

You will remember as a child when you had to take medicine how your mother persuaded you to swallow the horrible stuff first of all. And when that had been done, you received a cookie or a piece of chocolate to make you forget your agony.

Today, I shall follow a similar method. I shall ask you to read the following a similar method. I shall ask you to read the following passages, before we proceed to a discussion of the story Democracy, through the ages.

"First of all comes a king—a chief—a man on horseback. He is appointed by an aristocracy, a group of those who assisted him during his rise to power, but this aristocracy gradually makes common cause with the rich people and eventually they are succeeded by the rich, by the men of business, perceiving never so much as to see those whom they have already ruined—inserting their sting

(that is their money) into anybody who is not on his guard against them and recovering the principal sum many times over. That is the way in which they made drones and paupers to abound in the state.

"Finally their victims can no longer stand it and they attack the rich. They kill many and exile some and to the other they give what they call equality of freedom and power.

"Immediately they use their power to increase the dole and to give themselves all the lucrative offices.

"They later the multitudes and pamper them until all rule becomes anarchy, all standards are debased by omnipresent vulgarity and manners are corrupted by unhindered insolence and abuse.

"The mad pursuit of wealth destroys an oligarchy, but excess of liberty destroys a democracy, for the father desends to the level of the son and the master fears and flatters his pury-

WASHINGTON—(AP)—The United States Court of Appeals Monday ordered the American Medical Association to stand trial on monopoly charges, ruling that it was illegal to restrain "the lawful practice of medicine" as it was to restrain any kind of trade.

The decision by the appellate court for the district of Columbia upheld the validity of the indictment charging the American Medical Association, two of its affiliate societies and 20 individual doctors restrained from trade in opposing the activities of the Group Health, Inc., a Washington co-operative organization.

Farm Loan System May Be Revamped

Flat Three Percent Interest Charge Advocated

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Four farm-state leaders laid before congress Monday a proposal to revamp the farm loan system which they said would make land banks self-supporting and yet would cut interest rates to the farmers.

They put a flat three per cent interest charge on farm real estate loans.

Farmers now pay 3½ per cent on land bank loans and four per cent on land bank commissioner loans.

The bill was proposed by Chairman Jones, democrat of Texas, of the house agricultural committee, and Senators Wheeler (D. Mont.), Bankhead (D. Ala.) and LaFollette (Prog. Wis.).

No More Money for Byrd Expedition

House Refuses to Approve Another $250,000 Measure

Harris Candidate for Congress Post

Former Hempstead Man Seeks Post Held by Kitchens

LITTLE ROCK, Ark.—(AP)—Prosecuting Attorney Oren Harris of El Dorado, 36, Saturday became the first candidate to file his corrupt practices pledge and pay his party fee as a candidate for congress in the August democratic primary.

He announced for the seventh district congressional seat now held by Representative Wade Hampton Kitchens of Magnolia. Counties in the district are Hempstead, Nevada, Lafayette, Clark, Ouachita, Union, Columbia, Calhoun, Bradley, Ashley, and Chicot.

Harris said he believed the United States should maintain an army and navy "capable of protecting our rights and country" but added that this country should remain free from policies that might involve it in armed conflict.

Other policies which he said he advocated included:

1. Equal rights and opportunities for labor to obtain living wages.

2. A permanent soil conservation program.

3. Industrial development of the South and a permanent plan of eliminating unemployment.

4. An agricultural program giving to the farmers their just share of declining living standards.

5. Equality for the South and elimination of trade barriers and freight rate discriminations.

6. Balancing of the federal budget without increased taxes.

7. State control and regulation of crude oil production instead of federal control as set forth in the Cole bill now pending in congress.

Harris is completing his second term as prosecutor for the 13th district composed of Union, Columbia, Ouachita and Calhoun counties. He previously served four years as deputy prosecutor.

Harris was born on a Hempstead county farm and received his early education in rural schools of that county. He was graduated from Prescott high school; received his AB degree from Henderson Brown college, Arkadelphia, and a law degree from Cumberland university law school. He is married and the father of a daughter.

John M. Shackelford, El Dorado lawyer, filed his corrupt practice pledge as a candidate for prosecuting attorney to succeed Harris. He formerly was operator of an independent oil refinery.

WE THE WOMEN

By RUTH HILLETT
"You are as old as you are" isn't as comforting a philosophy for women as "You are as old as you think you are."

But it is a lot more honest. The woman who lives by it doesn't risk turning into one of the following types:

The woman who fancies that she looks like her daughter's sister, and who prefers running around with her daughter's crowd to having friends her own age.

The woman who stays cute years beyond the cute age.

The woman who refuses to assume the responsibilities of one her age, and instead stays as irresponsible as she was at twenty.

The woman who makes her husband miserable trying to keep him a dancing partner long after he has stopped enjoying night clubs.

The woman who tries so desperately hard to hang on to her beauty that she doesn't bother to cultivate any other qualities.

The woman with money who kids herself into thinking a man half her age is in love with her.

The woman who continues to flirt with men long after they stop flirting with her.

The woman who is so afraid of being plain "Mama" that she never is a real mother to her children.

A woman can't be more than a pitiable imitation of youth if she refuses to be her age.

In 1939, approximately 35,000 acres of peanuts were harvested in Atascosa county, Texas, with the yield about 15 bushels to the acre. The market value was about $500,000.

Bees' Shortstop Ready to Buzz Again

His broken left leg as sound as ever, Eddie Miller, Boston Bees' star shortstop, gets in some pre-training camp exercise at Orlando, Fla., by acting as instructor at Joe Stripp's baseball school. A collision with Al Simmons put Miller in the hospital last season two weeks before he was to play in the all-star game.

Washington Faces Pitching Shortage

Buddy Lewis Switched to Outfield — Travis to Third Base

By HARRY GRAYSON
NEA Service Sports Editor

ORLANDO, Fla. — Detroit, switching Henry Greenberg to left field to make room at first base for Rudy York, is not the only major league club conducting a noble experiment this spring.

Washington is transferring Buddy Lewis from third base to right field to create a vacancy at shortstop for young Jimmy Pofahl.

Cecil Travis moves over to third base, where he broke in.

The change may be good for Lewis, who failed to improve as an infielder in four years at the far turn.

Pofahl, provided he makes good, and Gerald Walker, obtained from the White Sox, should take some of the left-handed hitting curse off the Nationals. Both are strong right-hand smackers.

Injured Wrist Held Pofahl Back

Pofahl led the American Association in number of hits until he injured his wrist sliding in June. He finished with an average of .302, fourth in hits with 176 and fifth in total bases with 325. He also had 13 triples and 19 homers. His 128 placed him second in the important department of scoring runs.

Jimmy Waddell returns from Minneapolis to play first base with a batting mark of .323 and 29 circuit clouts.

The Senators have Jimmy Bloodworth and Little Bear Leip in addition to the veteran Bucky Meyer at second. Sam West round out a satisfactory outfield. Angelo Giuliani and Jake Early will give the well-seasoned Rick Ferrell sufficient aid behind the bat.

That brings us down to pitching and the reason Washington will finish well down in the American League race, high grade pitcher, Emil Leonard, who threw ball off the tips of his first two fingers with such skill last season that he won 20 games while losing 8.

Harris believes the southpaw, Kendall Chase, will come on, but his other left-hander, big bow-legged, red-headed Joe Krakauskas has been a disappointment.

Haynes Is Brightest Among Younger Crop

Alejandro Carroquel, the Venezuelan who looks like a pirate climbing in the teeth of an in-and-outter.

Big Joe Haynes, who got going again after losing his tonsils last season, is the brightest prospect among the younger hands. Walter Mas-the Reds, who staggered to the flag in 1939, will have their hands full.

This will be especially true if St. Louis comes up with a shortstop or second baseman of worth to play alongside of Jimmy Brown.

Reds Must Find Two More Hurriers

Bill McKechnie must build his Big Two—Bucky Walter and Paul Derringer—into a Big Four to once more head off Mize, Medwick, Slagbom and other robust blokes in red blazers.

Johnny Vander Meer could contribute greatly to the slinging shortage, and Vince DiMaggio will help in the outfield if he gets away from going after his own big league record for total strikeouts.

With any kind of pitching from some one besides Bob Grove last season, the Red Sox easily might have made things tough for the Yankees.

Cronin showed his faith in bespectacled Dominic DiMaggio by peddling Joe Vossnik. There is no question in regard to the youngest DiMaggio's flycatching and ability to do everything expect hit big time pitching.

Indians Also Need Additional Pitchers

With their second basing puzzle apparently solved by Lou Roudreau and Oscar Grimes Cleveland must develop pitching help for the amazing Feller.

A satisfactory and satisfied Hank Greenberg in left field and pitching would make Detroit dangerous.

Jimmy Dykes has to teach Taft Wright to catch a fly and get Julius Solters back in the batting swing he lost in 1938.

Washington possesses just one pitcher of real worth—Emil Leonard—which is why the Nationals will be fortunate to improve their sixth place finishing position of 1939.

The Athletics paid Benny McCoy $40,000 to sign and gave the second baseman a two-year contract at $10,000, but still have so many shortcomings that it is easy to understand why Connie Mack skips this season and the next and talks of 1942.

The Browns will be better for the very good reason that they couldn't be any worse.

The Giants landed an accomplished second baseman in Mickey Wittek of Newark, but a club having to fill three infield positions can't be expected to go any great distance especially when it is falling apart at the seams elsewhere.

Gabby Harnett will be lucky to finish the season as manager of the Cubs, which is your answer on the National League side of the Chicago picture.

The Pirates who took advantage of good-natured Pie Traynor are due for a rude awakening under fiery Frank Frisch.

The Bees cracked up with Eddie Miller's leg in 1939. With the stand-up-and-cheer shortstop going all the way, the Boston arroy will be troublesome with its tight defense but it lacks a wallop.

Increased weight about the hips has slowed up Joe Vossnik and causes him to hit into an alarming number of double plays, but the Cleveland Bohemian may be the long range right-hand hitter Brooklyn needed in 1939.

Philadelphia is training at Miami Beach, but even Miami Beach can't hurt the Phillies.

Seabiscuit Winner Richest Horse Race

Sets New Track Record in Winning Rich Purse Saturday

By HARRY GRAYSON
NEA Service Sports Editor

LOS ANGELES —(AP)— Seabiscuit won the greatest race of a great racing career Saturday. He captured the sixth running of the $100,000, added Santa Anita handicap and became the greatest money-winner of all time.

In his third crack at the top prize of this world's richest horse race and with the roar of a record crowd of 75,000 urging him on, the seven-year-old 'Biscuit outgained and outchased 12 rivals in breaking the track record.

It was a double triumph for the odds-on favored combination of Charles S. Howard and his Kayak II, winner of the 1938 Santa Anita handicap, ran second in a burst of speed that brought him to the front in the closing strides, a length back of his famous stablemate, Maj. Austin C. Taylor's Whicheck, pace-setter in the mile and one-quarter classic, ran third.

Victory for Seabiscuit, after a year's layoff and after he had been believed through with racing, brought $88,650 to his owner.

Bucky Jacobs, a small righthander is back from Springfield of the Eastern League, for which club he won 13 straight before being beaten.

Rene Montegudo, diminutive Cuban southpaw copped 18 while losing 10 for the same array. Early Wynn won 15 and lost 14 for Charlotte. Paul Gehrman, a 200-pound righthander who is inclined to be fat and who was with Cincinnati a couple of springs ago, won 14 and lost 13 for Albany.

Almon Williams, a six-foot three-inch right-hander, who was with the Athletics in 1937, won 14 and lost 9 for Chattanooga.

Harris intends to carry Sid Hudson, a six-foot four-inch right-hander who should get there eventually. Hudson was something of a sensation in the Florida State League, where he finished every game, he started in winning 24 losing only 4, and leading the loop with 192 strikeouts and walking only 63 in 250 innings.

A year ago, Clark Griffith believed he had a fireball pitcher in Roberto Ortiz, a huge Cuban.

Now Griffith insists Ortiz be made into an outfielder, although Bucky Harris says he won't be a hitter if he lives to be 80.

Women get 'Build-up'

A good way to relieve periodic discomfort from functional dysmenorrhea due to malnutrition, such as headaches, nervousness, cramp-like pain, many women find is by using CARDUI. It usually sharpens appetite, increases flow of gastric juices and so aids digestion, helps build resistance to periodic distress. Another way CARDUI may help you: Take it a few days before and during "the time." CARDUI has been popular for 50 years.

Hope Wins Title — 3 Players Among High Scorers

By EARL HILLIGAN
AP Feature Service

CHICAGO — Barney Ross, who once held the lightweight and welterweight boxing championships of the world, is right back where he started 13 years ago—arrested to death about it.

Barney, who lost his welterweight title to Henry Armstrong almost two years ago, is back in his old home town now as a "triple threat" young business man. And it's in the Morrison hotel, where he fought his first match as an amateur in 1927, that he now holds forth as a hotel executive between refereeing engagements and managing his own jewelry business.

"Boxing was grand to me," he smiled. "It gave me everything I ever had and won me the finest friends a man could have. It's a great fighting—now but that I'm over the game I'm happier than I ever have been and hold no regrets that younger fellows are carrying on."

Barney, at 30 years of age, looks as fit as on those nights when he fought some of his famous battles with Tony Canzoneri, Jimmy McLarin and other ring greats. Almost 12 years in the game, some nine as a professional, left few marks on his smooth, round face. His nose bears the marks, but there are no cuts. Impeccably dressed, he looks the part of a successful business man.

"I earned about $400,000 in boxing," Ross said, "and I enjoyed every minute of the time I spent at it—training and all. Everything I earned I owe to two of the finest friends and managers any man in sport could have. They were Art Winch and Sam Pain. During all the years I fought I never had a contract with them. They gave me advice which was invaluable—and even now, when something troubles me, I go to them for a friendly suggestion."

For recreation, Barney plays a lot of golf through the summer and fall and he shoots a game almost as smooth as the footwork he used to display inside the ropes—keeping around 90 consistently. Right now, however, he hasn't much time for any sport. As manager of the Morrison's new bar and cocktail lounge he keeps going from noon until late at night.

Even McCarthy Has His Problem

Has Young Rookie Coming Up for 2nd Base Job

By HARRY GRAYSON
NEA Service Sports Editor

ST. PETERSBURGH, Fla. — Even Joe McCarthy has a problem as the baseball clubs start another training season. But so efficient is the Yankee organization that its manager has to look a year ahead for the slightest trace of a headache, if, indeed, it is possible to develop one from an over-supply of fine talent.

Poor Joe is practically lying awake nights wondering what to do with Frank Crosetti in 1941, when Gerald Priddy is coming up from Kansas City to play second base and force Joe Gordon to the opposite side of the sack.

Sam Breadon has announced the Cardinals are out to win the National League pennant this trip, which means were devoted almost exclusively to shaking hands and opening congratulatory messages. His desk was piled high with telegrams from old friends, among them Jack Dempsey, himself a host of high repute. Barney was one of the most popular fighters to ever don a glove and now, as he "settles down to making a living," he apparently is as popular as ever.

SERIAL STORY

$15 A WEEK BY LOUISE HOLMES

COPYRIGHT, 1940, NEA SERVICE, INC.

YESTERDAY, Ann finds Clara's apartment a rather unattractive place but settles down to enjoy the company it affords. Florabelle shows Ann her glittering, well-furnished home, explaining that a former fiancé bought her furniture. Ann can have nice things, too, Florabelle says. If she wants them, she knows how to manage. Ann ponders her advice.

CHAPTER XI

ANN had gone to bed when Clara came in. "Have a good time?" she asked.

"Pretty good. We saw a keen picture but we couldn't get anything to eat because Sam was broke. I don't think I'll go out with him any more," she said, getting out of her clothes.

"Why? Don't you like him?" Ann remembered the kiss on the stairs.

"Yeah—I like him all right, but he has to support his old lady." Clara dubbed cold cream on her face.

"What difference does that make?"

"I'm not hitching up with any guy who's got to share his pay check!"

There it was again, every girl searching for a husband. Ann reasoned, "But you don't have to marry a man just because you go to a movie with him."

"Say, I'm not wasting my time." Clara turned out the light and climbed into bed. "Gee, I wish I could get a guy like Paul Hayden."

"What's so wonderful about him?" Ann asked.

"He's class, that's what he is. All the girls in the store, even some of the married ones, are making a play for him."

Ann thought this over. Perhaps Paul had reason for his wariness. "Listen, Clara," she asked, "why do you and all the other girls want to get married?"

"What else is there for us to want?"

"Don't you want something better than this, Clara?"

"What in the world is the matter with this?"

Ann tried to explain. "Some people live pleasantly. The men earn a good living, the women keep house. They have children, nice clean little kids—they use thick white towels and linen napkins—they have Christmas trees and presents—if they get sick a nurse comes to take care of them. Don't you see what I mean, Clara?"

Clara settled herself comfortably. Ann's words had not awakened one spark in her consciousness. "That may be fine for some folks," she said sleepily. "Us girls in the 10-cent store don't want kids, clean or any other kind." She stirred restlessly. "Gee, I wish Paul Hayden would give me a break." She was asleep.

ANN arose early the following morning. Clara, accustomed to standing at the stove while she drank a cup of muddy coffee, was amazed, even faintly displeased, to find a table neatly set. She ate in her bathrobe, grumbling meanwhile.

Riding to the city on the El, they discussed the girls on the third floor. Neddy and Teddy piloted elevators up and down in the Sampson building. They danced every night of the week. They were the most popular girls in the West Side tavern set.

"Does Myrtle have dates, too?" Ann asked, remembering the forlorn little person.

"No. Myrtle is married to Mrs. Follet's son. He's in the pen."

"Do you mean the penitentiary?"

"Sure he's in the penitentiary." Clara was saying. "He winged a cop in a hold-up. Myrtle was going to have a baby and they needed money." She spoke quite calmly.

"Where is Myrtle's baby?"

"It was born dead when he got pinched."

"Oh, the poor kids."

"Yeah—too bad. That's why I wish Paul Hayden would fall for me. He isn't the kind to get mixed up with the cops or come home roaring drunk every Saturday night. He'd be square, Paul Hayden would."

"Clara—I've got a date to go to the movies with Paul Hayden."

"Well, I'll be darned. All us girls have been treating him like the king of Sheba. You come along and give him a tongue lashing. And he takes you to a movie. I'll be darned."

Ann changed the subject. "Tell me about Florabelle. She showed me her apartment last night."

"Sweet dump. I don't see why she doesn't marry one of her swell friends."

"She must have a good job," Ann suggested.

"Saleslady at the Dressy Shoppe. Gets $15 a week."

"But she has lovely things, Clara—a telephone and radio—how does she do it?"

Clara shrugged her plump shoulders. "She gets a commission on sales—she says. She has first choice when they mark clothes down—she says. Most of her duds have been returned or have something the matter with them—she says."

"Oh?" Then, "She's all right, isn't she?"

"Far as I know. Smarter than the rest of us, that's all." Clara giggled. "I know one of her boy friends. He's our postman—simply gaga over Florabelle. He never gets anything but an icy stare but he keeps coming, week after week. Sometimes Florabelle lets him in and sometimes she don't." Clara laughed merrily.

THE girls parted at the corner of State and Dearborn. Ann's heart sang. It was fun to live with Clara. She had a date to go to the movies with Paul Hayden. It was a beautiful world.

Paul called in the afternoon. Mrs. Pringle raised her eyebrows as she handed the telephone to Ann. "It's a man," she mouthed silently.

Ann said, a bit breathlessly, "Hello."

"Ann?"

"Yes."

"Paul."

"Ah—the ambassador of the elves. What's new in fairyland?" His answering chuckle was deep and satisfying. "I've got inside information that Mickey Mouse is staging a riot at the Garfield."

"Sounds interesting."

"That's out our way. I'll call for you 'bout 7 if satisfactory."

"Oh—uh—perfect. I'll have time to change."

"Be seeing you."

THE remainder of the day had rose-colored frills. Ann sang at her work she chatted and laughed with Mrs. Pringle.

"Who is it, Ann?" the older woman asked.

"Paul Hayden—stock man at the 10-cent store."

"Your kind?" It was a subtle compliment.

"He's nice—I like him."

"Don't fall in love with him, Ann."

"A lot of good it would do me," she laughed.

"What do you mean?"

"He's a woman hater."

"He won't hate you, Listen, Ann—Mrs. Pringle was not clever. Life had sapped her until she was the mere shell of a woman. She groped from her store of experience to find advice for the girl. You're meant for better things. You're not like us." She spread her hands in a comprehensive gesture. "Don't spoil your chances by falling in love with a man who will pull you down to his level and keep you there."

"I won't, Mrs. Pringle," Ann told her seriously. "I'm going on. Just now I'll get there, I don't know. But there must be a way and I've got to find it."

Hope Star Adds NEA Telephoto Service- Newspictures Sent Over Telephone Wires Better Newspictures---Faster!

Hope Star has obtained exclusive rights to NEA Telephoto Service in this territory. With the inauguration of the new service today, pictures from all parts of the country will be sent to this newspaper by long distance telephone lines and radio from Europe. The new service which the Hope Star represents to its readers represents the latest advances in the field of newspaper transmission of news pictures. It is made possible by the cooperation of more than 700 enterprising newspapers in the nation.

Through the NEA Telephoto Service, pictures have been obtained from strategic geographical points throughout the United States. Each of these bureaus is equipped with a Telephoto Trans-Ceiver, which transmits and receives pictures over telephone lines.

The camera-recording of an event in the farthest corner of the nation can be faithfully reproduced in minutes in every NEA Telephoto bureau. Pictures that formerly took as long as two days by fastest mail to reach this section, are now in only seven minutes at a NEA Telephoto bureau and rushed to newspapers by special delivery for earliest possible edition.

Coverage of All News Fronts
NEA Telephoto covers not only the local scene but also the "home" pictures of particular interest to this locality... and the "war" in Europe. The photos from Europe are sent first by cable or radio to New York, and then by telephone to this section.

Expense is spared to bring news pictures to the picture of an event almost at the speed of the news itself. Camera men around the globe, their cameras trained on the scene of news events, some in the world, it is estimated, camera shutter in the hands of NEA photographers clicks every 15 seconds of the day and night.

Romance of Newspaper World
The story of the Telephoto service which rushes the best of these pictures to the Hope Star is one of the romances of the newspaper world. Millions of dollars have been spent in perfecting the Telephoto Trans-Ceiver, a picture can be sent across country almost as easily as you can send a letter. Long distance telephone engineers and scientists in the photo laboratory at Cleveland, O., have gone into the machines. Portable transmitting machines that can be carried almost as easily as a camera have been built for photographers to take to the scene of the news.

For NEA Telephotos every day the Hope Star-one more way this paper helps you keep up-to-date on the world's news.

Telephoto Trans-Ceiver, which is this new service possible for the Hope Star, is one of the marvels of modern science. Smaller than a standard typewriter, it has the power of sending far-off scenes through thousands of miles of fine wires; of transporting those scenes in color over mountains, across rivers, and plains.

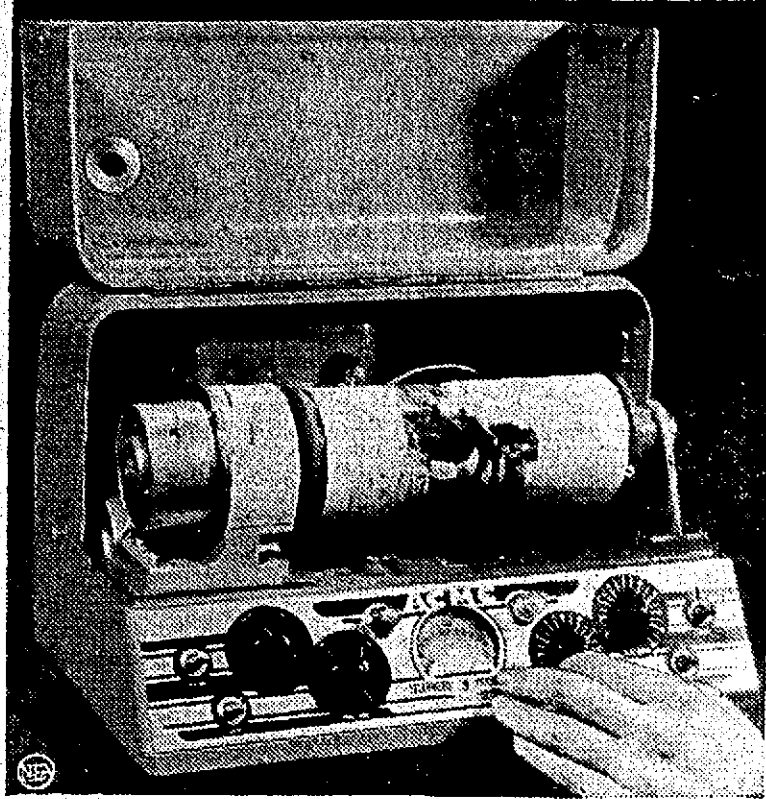

Fundamentally, this is how the Trans-Ceiver works.

The photograph to be transmitted is clamped against a drum. A tiny beam of light is thrown against it. The drum rotates, and the beam works its way across the photograph in seven minutes, "scanning" one-hundredth of an inch with each revolution.

Within the machine, a photo-electric cell picks up the light reflected from the photograph. The reflected light varies according to the light and dark parts on the photograph. This light is changed into electric impulses and sent over the telephone lines, which causes exactly equal fluctuation in a tiny beam of light on the receiving end.

The receiving beam is focused on a regular photographic negative or film which is also clamped to a drum. The beam of light gradually exposes the film as the drum revolves. At the end of seven minutes the entire negative is taken from the machine and a print made by regular photographic methods.

Plugged Into Any Phone Line
These machines can be plugged into a telephone line anywhere. They can send pictures simultaneously to several points, so the entire country can be covered in a matter of minutes.

This Acme Telephoto Trans-Ceiver, small as a typewriter, both transmits and receives pictures over ordinary long-distance telephone lines. Similar machines are spotted throughout the country.

FDR Ends Seven Years in the White House

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Roosevelt rounded out seven historic years in the White House Sunday without breaking the third-term silence which may new dealers believe will enable him to win re-election or pick the 1940 democratic presidential contender.

Any idea that the president might make the anniversary the occasion for an announcement of his attitude toward a third term was dispelled by the chief executive himself. He told reporters he would issue no anniversary statement on the subject.

HARRISON IN HOLLYWOOD

Grace Hayle, Who Makes Noises, Finishes Playing II Duce's Wife

By PAUL HARRISON
NEA Service Staff Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD—Blood-curling screams came from Paramount's Stage No. 5, so I went in to see who was being killed, this time, in "The Ghost Breaker." The scene wasn't very terrifying. There stood Grace Hayle, all 191 pounds of her, staring at a hat on the floor and shrieking like a soul in torment.

Miss Hayle was supposed to have discovered another murder victim. The hat didn't show in this shot; it merely marked the spot where a body would be found when the camera drew back and recorded the whole scene.

While explaining that, the plump actress explained that she's pretty good at other noises. Lion roars, donkey brays and rooster crows are other things she has done in pictures besides act. "All I have to do is get into the mood," she said. "When I feel like a lion or a rooster, I can sound like one." According to that, she must have spent the last two months feeling like a cunic version of Mussolini's wife, because that's the role she has just finished in Charlie Chaplin's new picture, "The Dictator."

Chaplin Wants Details Kept Secret
Members of the cast of the Chaplin film have been asked not to talk too much about it, but I got a few fresh details from Miss Hayle. Jack Oakie plays the Mussolini character, but is billed as Digaditchio Gasolini. Whenever he's seen on the screen, Signora Gasolini will be with him; but when news photographers get to take pictures, he always shoves her into the background. Hinkel (Chaplin's Hitler character) and Gasolini also have several lusties for preferred spots when the cameramen are busy.

Miss Hayle is billed as "The Forgotten Woman," but she has one scene at a ball in which she and little Hinkel do a comic dance. Incidentally, the Gasolinis both speak with a fruit-peddler accent, and this satire is likely to make the Italians very mad indeed. (Fortunately for Hollywood, Italy isn't buying any American films this season.)

Here's how Chaplin, as a mild little Jewish barber, happens to take Hinkel's place for awhile: The dictator bears reports of unrest among his people, so he puts on old clothes and mingles with them to find out what the trouble is. His plan leaks out, though, and when a crowd sees the little barber on the street they rush up and ask him if he's Hinkel. Chaplin is scared silly, and as he draws himself back against a wall he unwittingly assumes a Hitleresque pose. Immediately the crowd begins saluting him.

Story of Democracy

hile. The pupils despise their teachers. Young and old are alike, and the young man is on the level with the old one and ready to compete with him in word or deed. This excess of liberty causes slavery of the worst sort, and the most aggravated form of tyranny arises out of the most extreme form of liberty.

"In the end, this becomes unbearable. The rich, afraid that democracy will bleed them to death, begin to conspire against the democratic leaders, and meanwhile some enterprising fellow comes along and promises the poor he will make an end to all their misery if they will only follow him as their leader. He promises everything to everybody and hastens to surround himself with an army. He kills his enemies and then kills those of his friends whom he has reason to suspect. Finally, he purges the state and establishes a dictatorship.

"The few reasonable men are like civilized human beings fallen among the wild beasts, and they retire, if they want to save themselves, and wait until the storm has passed by."

That, as you might think, is not an editorial from a local Bolshevik newspaper. It is a translation of certain passages to be found in the works of Plato. He was considered the most intelligent student of politics in his day. And he lived twenty-five hundred years ago.

ing and hollering "Heil!"

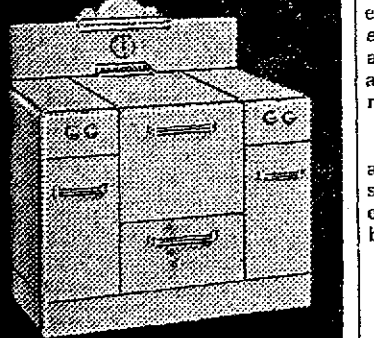

Speeches Made in Double-Talk
So Chaplin immediately is rushed to the palace and into Hinkel's clothes and character. He makes speeches in a guttural double-talk which sounds like fiery German but actually makes no sense at all. But along with his amazing pantomime, says Miss Hayle, he seems to make his meanings perfectly clear.

Mischa Auer plays a character representing Stalin, but this picture is pre-war-time, so Stalin and Hitler are not shown making their recent pact.

There's a sequence, though, in which Hinkel and his underlings are trying to figure a way to get Gasolini's troops back from the Austrian border so that Austria can be grabbed. Somebody suggests a non-aggression pact. Gasolini is invited to a very lavish ball and the pact is proposed. He can't understand why, if the two countries agree not to fight, it would make any difference where his troops were. Finally, though, he realizes it's just a scrap of paper, so he and Hinkel both sign with the obvious purpose of doublecrossing each other.
